Modern Hardware to Ensure Commitment to our Digital Agenda

The Situation

Having grown from a small group of volunteers to an 80-person organisation with offices in Europe and the Middle East in only two years, Kiron is currently experiencing a lack of appropriate hardware needed to work efficiently and effectively.

While we appreciate the refurbished computers and printers that supported us as a start-up, these donations are no longer sufficient. Workstations and technology upgrades are required to ensure that Kiron can deliver at a fast pace and continue to find innovative solutions for higher education. As the complexity of our digital offering grows, we also need to ensure that our tech team is equipped with adequate developer machines with quad-core processors and at least 16GB of RAM to develop our product even further.

SROI for Technology

Attract the best tech talent by offering them top notch technology to work with.

Increase employee satisfaction and productivity thanks to appropriate working tools necessary for a digital organisation.
